Introduction

Based on the PC version of Oubliette v2.5 with Patch 1.

Credits and References

Snafaru, GabySoft, Graham, HES, Liska, Ozone.

Features

Up to 6 characters at a time in your party out of 16 possible on each disk. A 3D wireframe or bird's eye view of the dungeon with stairs, pits, teleports. 150 monsters, 127 items, 27 magic spells, 18 clerical spells (spells are in a specially created language by David Emigh called Varget), characters can be of any 8 races and 10 classes.

Installation

This game runs in DOS mode, either from a diskette or the C: drive.

You can download Oubliette 2.5 with Patch1 game files from this site: <http://www.zimlab.com/oubliette/dos/>

To run it you have 2 choices:

Choice #1: Run the game with an emulator

- DOSBox is a x86 DOS emulator. You can download it from <http://www.dosbox.com/>. On Windows 7 64-bit it is necessary to use it to play the game. For example, it lets you mount the folder where Oubliette is installed such as C:\oubliette as drive A: (or B:, your choice) and then run it from drive A: by executing either the oub.exe or the goub.exe files. Oub.exe is the bird's view of the dungeon, Goub.exe is the 3D wireframe view of the dungeon.
- This is the easiest choice and it lets you control the speed of the game.

Choice #2: Run the game natively

- Unless you have an extremely old computer, your computer is too fast and you won't see any messages on the screen (they blink in and out too fast). But as an example to get the correct speed I use a Pentium III Celeron at 617Mhz with the Level 1 Cache disabled in the CMOS (Setup) of the computer as well as running Oubliette with Moslo with the speed switch set at /45, i-e, the DOS command to start Oubliette is "moslo.com /45 oub.exe". Oub.exe is the bird's view of the dungeon, Goub.exe is the 3D wireframe view of the dungeon. Your config.sys and autoexec.bat startup files can be empty.
- This choice is hard to do on modern computers, you should really try choice #1 first.

Bug Report

- If using the 3-D wireframe interface (GOUB.EXE) and you use the arrow keys to move instead of the A-W-D keys, then you won't see screen messages such as the stairs to go up, and you won't encounter any more monsters, if this happens Q)uit the game and restart it.
- Even if his condition is *PARALYSED*, a thief can disarm a chest (is the same true for a ninja or samurai?).
- After casting Narpic to get the monsters off your back, you will still get a chance to disarm a treasure chest if they deem so to leave one behind.
- The option K (Dungeon Options, non-combat), does not seem to work.
- The Altatok and Bonashef spells don't have any noticeable effects, although there are bytes in the character's data files that show that they are on, we can only assume that they work but as far as we can tell the benefit they provide seem to be only be marginal or inconsequential.
- If you run the game from the C: drive, then you get a "Not ready reading drive A" error message with the options "Abort, Retry, Fail?", simply type "f" to select "Fail" and the game will start, or insert a blank floppy disk in drive A:
- The spell Torgafier doesn't work, now this is very... unfortunate, but look at the bright side, it makes the game even more challenging.

Adventuring tips

- Although only the first 2 characters get to fight hand-to-hand, it is good to have a 3rd character that can fight so that one of the 2 first characters that gets into trouble can evade to the back of the party, this is especially true with your first ever party.
- The spell Kotier removes the poisoned and other conditions off of a character.
- The spell Geitorga is an excellent way to prevent your low hit points Mage from dying while falling into a pit.
- The "bird's eye" view of "oub.exe" makes it easier to map levels albeit it is not as nice as the "3-D frame wire" view of "goub.exe".

Some items' special power when invoked

Staff of Cloudkill          Casts ltoget.

Staff of Glory                Was supposed to have a teleport capability (Ref: Liska) but instead when you use its special power you get the following message: "<character_name>'s Earth Elemental casting..." and nothing happens.

Above is a list of the races within the game, and their typical characteristics. + means higher than average, * indicates average, and - denotes below average. The &+ for the age of elves indicates that elves are not affected by aging, and can, provided they stay out of trouble in the dungeon, be immortal. The +, or bigger numbers, for experience indicates the race requires more experience to make a level.

Class Minimum Statistics Required

Race	Str	Int	Wis	Cha	Con	Dex
Hirebrand	12	0	0	0	0	6
Mage	0	12	0	0	0	0

Samurai	15	9	15	0	9	15
Thief	5	0	4	0	0	12

Maximum Starting Stats (Ref: Liska)

A new character's maximum starting stats is determined entirely by his race. Each race has a rating from -- to ++ for each stat, and this rating governs the possible range of starting values a stat may assume. The - to ++ designation has no impact on stats once the character is generated, so a good guild and leveling can create a very intelligent Orc Mage.

The maximum possible stat for each rating is as follows:

-	20
*	26
+	32
++	36

Permanent stat-increasing items (Ref: Liska)

Item	Stat	% Destruction
Ring of Strength	STR	90
Tome of the Magi	INT	25
Holy Ring	WIS	90
Tome of Light	WIS	90
Book of Leadership	CHA	90

*Note by Snafaru: the stat increases between 1 to 3 points.

Guilds (Ref: Liska)

The Guild your character attends will have a significant effect on their stats. Guilds can add from 0 to 10 points to class-relevant statistics, which equates to 30% or more for most characters. For example, an Elvin Sage could enter a guild with INT 30, and leave with INT 40. Not all of the 29 Guilds are created equal, though, so it is important to know which guild offers the best training for your character. The table below lists all guilds in the game, and the maximum possible increase for each stat:

		STR	INT	PIE	LDR	CON	DEX
1. Kirgar Brigands	Hirebrand
2. Praetorian Guard	Hirebrand
3. Tokal Legions	Hirebrand
4. Orc Bandits	Hirebrand
